Life is...

A Note From David | October 30, 2021

Fragrant white canna are prolific and in bloom. Karen arranged the biggest vases full of them throughout our home. The poignant gardenias I pick for Karen many a morning are at the end of their flowering.

Though God sustains all, life is fleeting.

This month I bought a couple of ducks to eat the grasshoppers that were eating the fruit tree leaves, but a dog tried to eat one of the ducks.

Though God is unchanging, life is circular.

Kirk, my roommate from college, visited for 10 days: friend, supporter, board member.

God is faithful and life is relationship.

On Sunday last, a small congregation heard one, David G. Caldwell, present a message on deception. I wrote a four minute readers theater skit on how we slip into doing evil, which the singles group performed well. Traps, slight of hand, perceptions, and lies don't negate the fact that we all are responsible to handle well the truth we know.

Though God is Truth, life is filled with efforts of looking for truth, which we are capable of denying.

The now-useless keyboard that came with my computer began to act up this week by putting characters that were not typed onto the screen.

Though there is everlasting, eternal life in Jesus, we experience corruption and death.

I am to witness a dear couple to be connected in holy matrimony today. In somber seriousness expressed in festive community, we humans make vows. A substance of life is that we live out promises.

God will not break his Word.

In November, the Christian Camping International Latin-American: Mexico national conference takes place and Camp Duffel will be represented in training and recruiting. In November, Los Domos will host a precious group of kids and their leaders. Also, in November, interested church leaders will visit to plan how to make a godly investment in their youth.

Our trust is in Christ and life offers future hope to the young.
